ELEMENTS OF STYLE

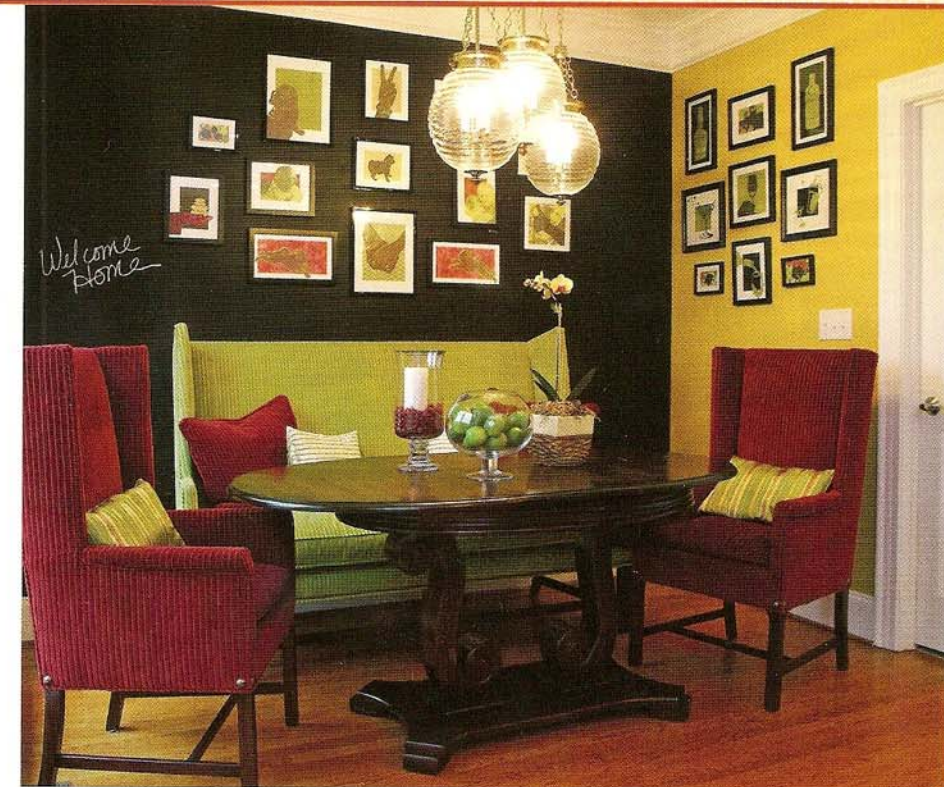

There is a thoroughness of purpose and down-to-earth ease present in the homes designed by Jessica Dauray. The involvement of her Greensboro based firm, Elements of Style Interiors, often begins at the blue print stage. "Our presence at this phase is about more than the selection of fixtures and finishes. We look at the entire project from an interior design perspective. We get to know our clients, understand their lifestyle and implement that into their floor plans as well as the interior design," explains Jessica. "This is really the best way to insure that the entire function with clean lines, warmth and sophistication, they are recognized for creating distinct and original designs for homeowners across North Carolina and the New York Metropolitan area. By specializing in custom interiors, as well as renovation and new home project consulting and management, Jessica and her design team allow their clients to realize the greatest pleasure from their home and their surroundings.

"There are so many exciting directions in the design industry today; from state-of-the-art products to eco-friendly materials, the design possibilities are endless."

project is realized as it was intended. Aside from creating beautiful rooms, they are really practical rooms ~ spaces people live in and enjoy."

Adding definition to Jessica's interiors are the subtleties, the details and the variations in texture which combine to create a rich look. "A casual luxury is the way that I like to describe it. We all want to curl up and be comfortable with our family and friends but we also want it to be nice. My interiors are traditional with neoclassical touches and contemporary influences." Jessica's interiors reveal the influence of her art history background. Her ability to create unique spaces for her clients involves incorporating architectural elements into the design as well as beautiful art and accessories.
